IAG MEMBERSHIP 2010

Members of the Institute of Australian Geographers advance the objectives of the organisation, which are noted in the Constitution (<http://www.iag.org.au/iaqconst.htm>) as follows:

“2.1 The objectives of the Institute are:

- (a) to promote the study and practice of geography in Australia;
- (b) to advance the study of Australian geography internationally;
- (c) to hold and sponsor meetings, symposia, conferences or other gatherings to present, discuss and disseminate geographical studies and research;
- (d) to undertake or assist in the publication and dissemination of geographical studies and research by way of a Journal and other means;
- (e) to represent the interests of professional geographers in Australia;
- (f) to co-operate with other organisations having kindred purposes.”

Membership comprises several categories:

- a. life membership – for those people nominated by members of the Institute and approved by Council as meriting ongoing membership provided without charge by the Institute in recognition of services provided to it;
- b. ordinary membership – for professional geographers and any other interested persons who have agreed to advance the objectives of the organisation but are not seeking professional membership; and
- c. concession membership – for former professional geographers and any other interested persons who have agreed to advance the objectives of the organisation but are not seeking professional membership AND who are students, are in receipt of Commonwealth Government benefits as their primary source of income, or are retired (MIAG).

NB. The category of registered membership has not been made available under the IAG constitution since 2008. As this category and use of the title ‘Registered Member of the IAG’ (RMIAG) have both been withdrawn, members are now invited each year by the IAG Council and through a process of nomination to become a ‘Fellow of the IAG’ (FIAG).

Membership entitles subscribers to a range of annual services:

- four issues of Geographical Research: Journal of the Institute of Australian Geographers,
- two issues of the Institute Newsletter,
- annual conferences,
- regular study group meetings,
- opportunities to network via the IAG Listserv, and
- access via Council to the National Committee for Geography, Academy of the Sciences, and thus to the International Geographical Union.

The fee structure for membership in 2010 is as follows:

CATEGORY	2010 FEE SCHEDULE
Life	Institute provided
Ordinary	110.00
Concession	60.00
